

www.froglife.org

Toads have warty skin and can be brown, olive green, sandy, red or orange, with golden eyes.

LOTTERY FUNDED

They lay their eggs in long strings underwater.

Toads have shorter back legs than frogs and prefer to crawl rather than jump.

They have rugby ball shaped glands behind their eyes which produce toxins, making their skin taste nasty to predators.

www.froglife.org

Toads have warty skin and can be brown, olive green, sandy, red or orange, with golden eyes.

LOTTERY FUNDED

They lay their eggs in long strings underwater.

Toads have shorter back legs than frogs and prefer to crawl rather than jump.

They have rugby ball shaped glands behind their eyes which produce toxins, making their skin taste nasty to predators.